

NEWSFLASH!! ALL PMA COURSES HAVE BEEN UPGRADED FROM NQF2 TO NQF 4 LEVEL!

NOW IS THE TIME FOR BAT-PROOFING

Most bats are protected by law. Sometimes, certain bat species are protected while other species are not. Needless to say, you need to know regulations regarding bat control and removal.

Live removal and release, or exclusion may be the only bat control methods allowed without obtaining special permits. While you may be allowed to remove bats from a building, you cannot legally remove adult bats from a nest site if nursing young would be left behind to die.

So, in most areas, now is the time to deal with bat problems in buildings. By late summer, young bats are able to fly and leave the nest site so you don't have to worry about sealing them in when you bat proof.

Bats will still be returning to the roost at night though, and in many areas bats remain in the roost all winter long. Before you can complete bat-proofing of a building, you need to use a bat excluder, such as netting or a one-way valve, over the entrance hole for several nights to make sure all the bats are out of the roost. Wear heavy leather gloves and avoid handling the bats.

The best way to exclude bats is to have shade netting of 1.2m long about 100mm away from the wall. The bats will exit out as they first plummet down and then fly away. On their return they will fly into the net and thus be excluded.
